TUESDAY EVENING. MAY 27, 1902

GENERAL FITZHUGH LEE Was one of President Rooseveit's guests at the luscheon yesterday. In speaking of the relations between this government and Cuba the general said:

"This government has a settled policy in regard to the island. It promised it liberty, and now that promise has been fulfilled. It the experiment proves successful, if confidence is given to captal, I see no reason for any interference." "But what do you think of the ability of the Cuben people to of the abil ty of the Cuban people to build up that kind of a government?" he was asked. "That's problematical —experimental," laughed General Lee as he walked down stairs.

Over one hundred years ago, when the republic of the United States first posed as an independent power, Enprophets pigeon-holed their forecasts. Cuba will doubtless have the same ex. perience if she is let alone. But that she will not be is the opinion of many and that the masquerade dress in which she has been attired by the United States will have to be dropped eventually at the ipse dixit of the country who wrested the island from Spain, whose apron strings may be likened to the cord by which an organ-grinder secures his monkey when its grimaces and contortions cease to be profitable.

THE SPRECH of Representative Lanham at the Confederate Memorial Day services in this city yesterday was generally regarded as one of the most thrilling ever listened to on any similar oceasion. The speaker was at home with his subject, spoke without notes and his words formed a steady flow of oratory and pathes for about an hour. As he drew towards its close the hearer found himself in a condition similar to that experienced in reading a pleasant book when he begins to count the leaves and lament the fact that there is but one volume. He spoke ex animo, and while some of the younger and more thoughtless in the audience did not listen as attentively as others, every wearer of the gray and the majority of his hearers drank in all he said with avidity. At of lest January, after Representative care invitation extended Mr. Maddox is as honestly applied to Mr. Lanham. That he may come again is the earnest wish of all.

REPORTS from the Norfolk district indicate that a warm contast will be had between Mr. Mayoard, the present incumbent, and Mr. Lawless, for the democratic nomination for Congress and that "personalities" may be indu ged in, which may result in bitterness if not a split in the democratic vote. This has frequently occurred in the Norfolk district and the result has been the election of a republican to represent that strong democratic district in Congress. The republicans are counting on a recurrence of democratic division and, as recently stated, "word has gone down from Washington" directing them to nominate a candidate for Congress and make a strong fight and that all the money needed will be furnished them. The democrats should take warning and see that a friendly contest is held in the Second district—such an one that at its termination all who take part can rally to the support the recognition of the time in justifying the course of his newspaper, the Denver News, from whose editorials Mr. Foraker, of Ohio, quoted several days ago. lows, but, like money, it breaks up the strongest friendships. Two years ago Mr. J. T. Lawless was one of the strongest sur-porters Mr. H. L. Maynard had in his race for Congress in the Second district and sides him materially in securing the nomination and the election. But now Mr. Lawless has decided to become a congressional candidate and yesterday challenged Mr. Maynard to a joint debate, saying: _"Inasmuch as you seek a renomination upon the strength of your public record, and desire, of course, that the people be informed thereon; and inasmuch as I, too, desire to be heard in this connection, I hereby respectfully invite you to meet me in joint discussion throughout the dirtrict." Mr. Maynard declined the challenge, saying: "It will be unwise in my opinion to engage in a public discussion of our claims for nomination. Furthermore, my duties in Payne to adjourns on Thursday next Congress will prevent me making an extended until Monday, June 2, et noon. This Congress will prevent me making an extended canvass of the district at this time." To this declination Mr. Lawless replied that the seasons were evasions and "will prove to be district, to whom you are industrictly are pealing in person for a renomination. They must be considered to receive full information controlled to receive full information co which you rely, and I now give you notice of down by the train,

FROM WASHINGTON.

Correspondence of the Alexandria Gasette. Washington, D. C., May 27. Capt. Fred McDonald, formerly of Company M. 26th Infantry, appeared efore the Sepate committee on the Philippines this morning and, in fur-ther refutation of the charges made against him by Corporal Richard O'Brien, produced a number of official documents from the War Department in support of his statements. One of these documents showed that O'Brien was not at the town of Igbarras at the time be testified be was there and was told of the outrage of a native woman by Captain McDonald and the other officers of his company. "This shows that O'Brien lied absolutely in his testimony before this committee;" commented the witness. Other papers produced cleared the Cartain of O'Brien's charges that he had misappropriated the company's funds and dis-proved his statements that he and the men with him had been unable to get vegetables and delicacies. He announ-ced that he objected to being called a thief by a man like O'Brien. Mr. Rawi line, of Utah remarked here that the testimony of O'Brien in his estimation was not of such a character as to make it incumbent upon any one to defend his reputation. Mr. District said that if O'Brien's charges against American officers had been smothered as suggestglishmen and others in Europe shook their heads ominously when asked what would be the outcome of this country. Most of them were of the opicion that it would explode into many fragments at the first presidential election. It came and passed off without any such dire result, and as election followed election, issues were sprung and safely bridged over and the country emerged from one crisis and another until the would-be prophets pigeon-holed their forecasts. Mr. Dietrich replied by saying that when he used the words "designing persons," he had not intended to apply them to "high minded Senaand with that explanation the whole incident was ordered to be stricken from the record. At the con-clusion of Captain McDonald's testimony, he addressed the committee say-ing: "I have intended to prove that some of the witnesses before this com-mittee have committed perjury and slandered American officers. Among them O'Brien has certainly libelled me criminally, and I ask the committee to take some steps to punish him for his

During the greater part of the Senate's session yesterday Mr. Patterson, of Colorado, one of the minority members of the Philippine committee, ocson quoted from the utterances of the son queen from the terestates of the paper to show that it consistently had advocated the independence of the Filipinos since December, 1898, the editorials quoted by Mr. Foraker having been written prior to that time. He discussed the whole Philippine question, and had not concluded his remarks when he yielded the floor for the

After some further discussion of the Philippine question between Mr. For-aker and Mr. Hoar, dealing particular-ly with President McKinley's prools-mation to the Filipinos, the bill was laid aside for the day and sixty-two private pension bills were passed.

He had been given omdan warning of the impending cataclysm, and that warning reached him several days before the disaster on May 8. He chose to disregard it, and even went so far as to order that the warning should be kept from the public. Professor Landes, of the University of St. Pierre, had been instructed by Governor Mouttet to make an investigation of Mount Pelee. At the imminent risk of his life Professor Landes went to the crater of the volcano. He found that the forces at work were such as to make an explosion certain.

Hurrying back to St. Pierre, he sent a cipher dispatch to the governor, in which he gave the warning that the voiceno would not hold itself in check much longer. He even went so far, i is said, as to predict the destruction of St. Pierre not later than May 8. In-stead of soting on the advice of Proessor Landes, the governor went to St Pierre and tried to allay the feare of its Pierre and tried to allay the fears of its inhabitants. He ordered the professor to say nothing about the conclusions reached. The governor said that if St. Pierre was destroyed he would remain to share the fate of the inhabitants, Professor Landas accompany. Professor Landes acquiesced, saying he, too, would remain. together.
The chairman of the committee, Rev. Dr. Thomas Pardy, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., said it would open the door to ministers of other denominations to me to the Presbyterian church and come to the Presbyterian church and claim the same privileges as the ministers who had served the Northern General Assembly sil their lives.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS. Washington, D. C., May 27.

SENATR. In the Secate this morning Mr. Burrows as chairman of the committee on privileges and elections annunced that he was authorized to report ad-versely the House resolution providing for amending the constitution so as to provide for the election of U. S. Sen-store by popular vote.

The committee had no formal report to make, he said. He aunounced that the majority by a vote rejected the House resolution. A majority vote favored the resolution as amended by the Depew provision calling for federal supervision of elections in the Etates, but on the resolution as amended the majority was opposed to it. He made this statement for the information of the Senets.

The verbal report was greeted with laughter and a spirited colloquy was precipit ted over the question as to whether the report was a formal one whether the report was a format one adversely to the House resolution.

Mr. Berry declared it was. So did Mr. Teller and Mr. Jones (Ark.).

Mr. Foraker said a mistake had been made. The chairman of the committee had not been instructed to report the resolution adversely. As he took is the action of the committee was equivalent to a notification to the Senate that the committee was merely unable to

Mr. Burrows stated that he had not

Finally upon motion of Mr. Hoar neideration of the motion to dismiss went over under the rules.

After debate, a resolution for the appointment of a committee of three to meet a similar committee of the House to confer on matters of conference be-was laid before the Senate and Mr. Patterson took the floor to continue his speech against the measure.

The House met at 11 o'clock to take up the consideration of District of Columbia matters. Only 20 members were in their seats.

A bill to establish a code of laws for the District of Columbia was passed without opposition and then is committee of the whole consideration of the Shartue immigration bill was resumed. Mr. Ball took occasion to censure the committee of the House that was in charge of the unveiling of the Rochambeau statue. He said that all the members of the House had not been treated alike and that the committee has been unfair.

Mr. McCleary, chairman of the House committee, failed to answer Mr. Ball and the incident closed.
